To All NAAWS Members:

Recently, we had the opportunity to see a demonstration and on-site test of Wireless Personal Body Alarm technology for Correctional Officers and Employees. Grace Industries, Inc. offers a Personal Body Alarm System which includes three levels of protection:

- Lack of motion – a built in motion sensor can automatically trigger the audible alarm and summons help if the user stops moving,
- Tethered emergency key – can be easily knocked off in a scuffle or assault incident, which activates the audible alarm and summons help,
- Silent alarm can be activated and sends a signal for help.

All of the features can be easily adapted to suit the individual requirements of every facility or security preferences. The call for help is sent to a central receiving station which can also be monitored at other locations as desired. The entire system is wireless and suitable for quick installation without major wiring or extensive renovations to a facility.

The actual testing took place at the Louisiana State Penitentiary (LSP) and was completed by the communication and security staff within that facility. With the many levels of security and geographic locations of the inmate population at LSP, the Grace Industries System can be readily configured and sized to meet any circumstances or facility requirements. This system is affordable and necessary for all Correctional Officers and Employees.

As President of the North American Association of Wardens and Superintendents, I am pleased to have Grace Industries, Inc. as one of our newest sponsors and supporting patrons. Please extend a warm welcome to Grace Industries, Inc. and consider their Personal Body Alarms for utilization at your facility.

Sincerely,

Burl Cain, Warden
